

Hello all,

I'm so glad you enjoyed the Workplace Choirs webinar. As promised, here are some useful links that I discussed during my webinar last week, some of which will be helpful for those who listened to Community Choirs webinar.

Making Music is an organisation I would recommend all choirs to join; the expertise and support they provide is unparalleled. From sample contracts to insurance to an inter-choir library lending system, processing PRS, it's pretty well all there.

It's worth having professional support too, you should consider being a member of the Incorporated Society of Musicians <https://www.ism.org> or the Musicians' Union <https://www.musiciansunion.org.uk>; having professional and insurance protections in place is invaluable.

Sing for Pleasure's pointers offer a very useful, practical guide to many questions that conductors want answers to. Have a good browse.

For those of you that we have not had the pleasure to welcome to at a SFP Conducting course (and those that we have, for that matter), here's a link to Summer School, which is open for bookings and which we will do our utmost to ensure happens, safely and as joyfully as ever.

The skills we teach will directly benefit your conducting of Workplace and Community Choirs.
